ODDITIES IN MAILBOXES.

Old Thing, From Money to a String of Sausages.

People put queer things in letter boxes, said a mail carrier the other day. "They seem to have an idea that they are doing brilliant things when they drop old things into a mailbox under the collectors. I have found almost everything in my boxes, including money. Yes, money; but you know there are some of these newspaper men on my route who know me, and sometimes they have a batch of letters and no stamps on hand. They put the letters in and along with the necessary amount of money pay postage. Of course they know the rest. This is the only way I have ever found money in a mailbox. I have been hunting two years or so for the duck who put about three dollars in one of the boxes one day. I was bumping along on my ground about 11 o'clock and opened a box. When I ran my hand in, I felt the string of 'dog,' and I was at the worst frightened fellow in the district, for I was sure I had hold a snake, and I didn't know whether to head or tail hold either. I turned back, and striking a match, I soon found that I had a joke played on me. Before that night I was a great eater of sausage, but I have not been to tackle any since."—Washington Post.

John Ruskin and Newman Hall.

John Ruskin's church was building Mr. Newman Hall had an amusing bout with Mr. John Ruskin. He went and asked the ser's advice as to how to get a church which should not only be beautiful, but beautiful; not only being from rain and sun, but in the happy thoughts and holy emotions. He replied, as he had already written, "that we should not build up a church, but gather together a few people who would not steal or tell lies." "I said," writes the pastor, "that we must have hundreds of such and needed building where under shelter they would worship and be taught. He replied, 'I said I was speaking to the author of the book of Venice.' Whereupon Mr. Newman made the singular reply: 'So you are not. Every one who is something in teaching men passes through three stages of life. At first he teaches what is inaccurate, then he unlearns it, and lastly he teaches the truth—which stage I have now reached.'"

That was in 1872.—London Chronicle.

Wanted a Nerve Soother.

A middle aged woman called at a chemist's in Camden town one evening and asked for morphine, and the shopman replied to her request with: "Is it for your husband?" "Oh, no, sir; I have not got any." "You don't think of suicide?" "Far from it." "What do you take it for?" "Must I tell you, sir?" "You must, or otherwise I can't supply you." "Well, then, don't you think that a woman forty years old who has had her first offer of marriage less than an hour ago naturally wants something to quiet her nerves and give her a good night's sleep?" The druggist thought so, and she went away contented with the nerve soother.—Spare Moments.

Why Meerschaum Colors.

Meerschaum would not color at all but for the fact that it is boiled in wax. If used in its natural state, it would quickly become soiled, the material being so porous that it absorbs the slightest moisture from the hand or anything it comes in contact with. But the wax fills up the pores and gives the meerschaum a sort of enamel. A pipe that has been spoiled by overheating so that it will not color can be rebuffed in wax and restored to some extent. This kind of work is done in the trade by experts, for it requires great skill.

The Spaniard at Home.

The Spaniard at home is not understandable. He loves flowers and carries a pistol; he is passionately fond of the theater, but does not keep quiet that he or his neighbors may hear; he is charmingly courteous and inexcusably cruel; he shares his bread and wine with every stranger and stabs a friend over a trifle. Such are the traits of some. The bullfight is the favorite amusement of this class, and the bullfight, though declining somewhat in popularity, is yet the national diversion.

VIRULENT CANCER CURED.
Startling proof of a wonderful advance in medicine is given by druggist G. W. Roberts of Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there had long suffered with what good doctors pronounced incurable cancer. They believed his case hopeless till he used Electric Bitters and Bucklin's Arnica Salve, which treatment completely cured him. When electric bitters are used to expel biliousness and microbe poisons at the same time this salve exerts its matchless healing power, blood diseases, skin eruptions, ulcers and sores vanish. Civilization by Chemistry.

It might be said that the civilization of a country is measured by its consumption of sulphuric acid, a chemical product which is at the bottom of almost every industry. Chemistry is responsible for the existence of all explosives. In this last respect, so far as usefulness for war is concerned, it might be deemed destructive, but in its production of fertilizers it is creative, and in its manufacture of medicines it is preservative of human life. Chemistry has made it practicable to produce a pure quality of gas for illuminating purposes. There would be no good ink if it were not for chemical science. Where would photography be but for chemistry, upon which the whole art depends?

The whole leather industry depends upon chemistry, for tanning is a chemical process. Mineral oils, such as kerosene, are purified by chemical means, and the same may be said of vegetable oils and of all the pigments employed for painting. Many kinds of foods are preserved by the help of salicylic acid and other chemicals, which are not harmful when used in very small quantities.—Saturday Evening Post.

Not Worried by the Leak.

Strange replies are often received by wives who wake their husbands for burglars, leaky water pipes, etc., in the early morning. Mrs. C., wife of a certain government official in Baltimore, is decidedly nervous and has frequently "heard things." One morning she thought she smelled gas. Bravery came to her mysteriously, and she crept down stairs to investigate. After smelling about for some minutes she rushed up stairs, called Mr. C., then shook him and at last aroused him. Then this was heard:
"John, there's a leak in the gaspipe in the kitchen. We'll all die if it is not fixed."
Leaks had been heard of before, and Mr. C. sleepily asked:
"Is it a leaking much now?"
"Not much," screamed his wife. And then as Mr. C. turned over this soothing advice was given:
"Put a bucket under it and come to bed."—Baltimore Sun.

A Light Heart Under Failure.

A light heart under failure is a condition of success which may be written down as an essential. No one should need to be warned against the deleterious effects of the blues. Nothing deadens the heart of enterprise or unstrings the nerves of action like a fit of the blues. In one of those beautiful prayers which Robert Louis Stevenson wrote for us in his Samoan household he prayed for "courage and gaiety and a quiet mind." A man who backs up his brains with these three gifts has all the odds in his favor. It is next to impossible that he should fail in what he undertakes to accomplish. Gaiety is the essence of power. What is there in a failure or two to cry about or in a dozen failures when you know you are bound to get there?—Richard Le Gallienne in Success.

"The Arabian Nights."

That most fascinating book, "The Arabian Nights' Entertainment," is not the work of any one man or men, but simply a compilation of Arabian folk-lore tales, doubtless told in the bazaars by professional raconteurs so often as to make them history. These tales have suffered many alterations and in their present form show traces of translation to Egyptian soil. The date of the accepted version is not earlier than 1450 A. D. The book was first introduced into Europe through a translation from Arabic into the French by one Antoine Galland in 1704. The manuscripts used by him bore the date of 1548.

No Sensation Intended.

Among the printed and posted regulations of one of the New York public schools are these instructions for the fire drill of the pupils:
"Fire Drill.—(a) Three Bells.—To the sidewalk and return with clothing.
"(b) Four Bells.—To the yard and return without clothing."
As a matter of fact, this performance is not as sensational as this principal's ambiguity might suggest, for the clothing referred to is only the outer wraps and hats of the children.—New York Mail and Express.

"The Ghost of Leap Year."

In France there is a popular tradition among the peasantry, especially those of the Seine country and of La Chaire, concerning a demon called "the Ghost of Leap Year." It is said that every leap year this peculiar sort of evil demon makes his dread appearance. The creature's sole pleasure is to be displeased with everything and everybody. His shape is not distinguishable in member, joint or limb, but taken altogether his hideous and menacing features make him a much dreaded monster.

Dogs.

There are in France 2,854,000 dogs, an average of 15 to every 1,000 human beings. Irish dogs, curiously enough, come next, with a percentage of 75 per 1,000. England has only 38 per 1,000, Germany 31 and Sweden only 11. It is stated that Germany claims to have almost 2,500,000 dogs. Russia only 1,500,000 and Turkey, oddly enough, only 350,000.

Richard III.

The best words of Richard III. were: "Not one foot will I flee so long as breath bides within my breast, for he who shied both sea and land this day shall end my battles or my life. I will die king of England."

A New Attraction.

"I'm thinking of taking in a partner," said the garrulous barber. "All right," said the man going out. "Make it a silent one, and I'll come around again."—Yonkers Statesman.

Tucson, Arizona, June 10.—Despatches received at Hermosillo this morning report a battle between 600 Yaqui Indians and 2500 men under General Torres in San Matzan territory, 20 miles north of the mines of Priestess, resulting in the killing, wounding and capturing of nearly all the Indians. The Mexicans suffered severely but details are lacking.

A Disappointed Ducky.

I stood one Saturday afternoon on the porch of a Luray (Va.) hotel and saw file past a hundred or more darkies returning from work, each and every one of them carrying a "watermelon" under his arm. They had been paid off, and a convenient farm wagon loaded with melons happened to pass as they filed along, and the darkies all bought.

One young buck, after hugging that melon for several blocks, "just couldn't stand it no longer" and without ado sat down upon the curb, and in the absence of a jackknife he deftly tapped the melon against the edge of the curb until it broke asunder. Mansfield in transforming his Jekyll face into that of Hyde upon the stage never equaled the lightning change of countenance exhibited by that ducky. One moment his eyes bulged, his mouth distorted, his teeth glistened, and his face fairly glowed with pleasurable expectancy, and in the twinkling of an eye when the parted halves of that unripe and white seeded melon fell from his palsied hands his eyes contracted to mere slits showing an angry, snakelike red, his face became of an ashen hue—call it pale if you will—and through his slightly parted lips he hissed out imprecation after imprecation upon the farmer, showing the fact clearly that the disappointed one was a past grand master in the art of profanity.—Forest and Stream.
